

Dr Chetana Asbe

chetana.asbe@cimr.in

Educational Qualification: Ph. D., MFM, CFA (ICFAI), M.com., B.Com

Experience [Industry and Academics]: CIMR- 1 year; N. L. Dalmia Institute of Management Studies and Research- 10 years; CRISIL- 4 years.

Her experience of 15 years is a blend of industry and academia. Prior to joining Chetana's Institute of Management & Research, she was with N. L. Dalmia Institute and CRISIL, Mumbai.

Association & Affiliations: She is a guide to two research scholars for doctoral program at LIUTEBM, Zambia, since February 2021.

Research – She has completed her doctoral studies in Management from the University of Mumbai. In her doctoral dissertation, she has studied the impact of key RBI monetary policy rates on price stability during the post 2008-recession period. She has also authored a book, 'Reserve Bank Of India's Monetary Policy Moves Since 2008' under Lambert Academic Publishing. In addition to her dissertation, other areas that interest her for research are Accounting Policies, ESG, Alternative Investment Funds and Credit Rating Agencies amongst others. She is on the editorial board of Science Publishing Group's Journal of Finance and Accounting.

MDPs and Consultancy- She has conducted an MDP on Revenue Recognition (ASC 606).

For the Research & Development-

Asbe, C. D. (2017). RBI and Financial Stability- In the Light of FSLRC. Abhinav National Monthly Refereed Journal of Research in Commerce & Management.

Asbe, C. D. (2021). The Wave Of Alternative Investment Funds In India. International Journal of Financial Management (IJFM), 10(1), 79-88.

Asbe, C. D. (2019). Role of Repo Rate in Indian Monetary Policy Since 2014. The International Journal of Business and Management Research, 12(1), 130.

Asbe, C. D. (2018). Recent Evidence on Flexible Inflation Targeting in India. International Journal of Advance Research in Computer Science and Management Studies [IJARCSMS].
